

Combating Inflation with Corn

Farmland is an inflation hedge. Allocating part of one's investment portfolio to farmland (particularly farmland in nations that will experience relatively high inflation) will not only protect investors but will allow them to profit – perhaps immensely.